

Invitation to be part of Green Street

What is Green Street ... what are the benefits?

Green Street invites people to have a go at being more environmentally friendly at the same time as saving household costs and improving the sustainability of the whole community.

To put a bit of fun into it, Green Street operates as a social networking website a bit like a Green Facebook and offers prizes and interesting ways of getting others involved. Green Street is at www.greenstreet.net.au and invites you to take action at an individual household level as well as at a street level and in your circle of friends if you prefer it that way.

What to do?

A lot of households and businesses have already joined up to Green Street via the website on www.greenstreet.net.au

All you need to do is join up to the Green Street website on www.greenstreet.net.au and get yourself started with a Green Street Score which tells you how much you've already done to have a sustainable household as well as how much more you might like to do.

Where did the idea come from?

Green Street was created by a Brisbane family and the fascinating thing is that others from around the country are also getting on board. As each day goes by more and more people and organizations are getting into the spirit of it.

Why not!

It's for a great cause, costs nothing except a little bit of time to login and do the very brief survey.... and it could be good fun to boot! Not to mention having a chance at the prizes and reducing your own household costs.

It's also something children will learn from that will help them and the community in the future.

Hoping to see you on Green Street soon!

Cheers,
Green Street Team
